a holistic perspective for navigating and exploring the csr landscape strategic corporate social responsibility sustainable value creation fifth edition redefines corporate social responsibility csr as being central to the value creating purpose of the firm and provides a framework that firms can use to navigate the complex and dynamic business landscape based on a theory of empowered stakeholders this bestselling text argues that the responsibility of a corporation is to create value broadly defined the primary challenge for managers today is to balance the competing interests of the firm's stakeholders understanding that what they expect today may not be what they will expect tomorrow this tension is what makes csr so demanding but it is also what makes csr integral to the firm's strategy and day to day operations living standards in the uk and us are in danger of falling a decline in growth due to poor productivity and an unfavourable change in demography has weakened the stand of liberal democracy and voter dissatisfaction is encouraging populist policies that threaten even worse outcomes whilst living standards once grew faster than productivity they now grow more slowly and the working population is no longer growing faster than the population as a whole to avoid falling living standards the productivity problem must be addressed andrew smithers argues that faster productivity does not depend as many suggest on technology it also relies on investment current growth theory is based on a faulty model which has induced pessimism about our ability to encourage more growth productivity and the bonus culture sets out a revised model which demonstrates that weakness in productivity is the result of the bonus culture and suggests ways to change this flawed system so that investment is encouraged and growth returns
